PITTMAN FAILS IN ATTEMPT TO ANSWER MILLER

Says Questions Are Absurd as Everyone Knows His Stand
on Soldier Bonus

The democratic rally last night at the latter theatre was a success in point of attendance, but it was a dismal failure so far as light being thrown upon the enactment of the dollar silver bill by Senator Key Pittman. It was also a failure from the viewpoint of the senator answering the questions propounded by A. Ogust Miller, republican nominee for congress, relative to the government securing finances for the payment of a soldier bonus.

Mr. Miller asked Senator Pittman if he would vote for a general sales tax as he would favor a bond issue of four billion dollars to meet the situation, but the answer was evaded by the senator who said that everybody knew where he stood, and that he was in favor of paying the bonus by using the interest that the government were to pay to the United States upon their ten billion dollar indebtedness. Everybody knows America has plenty of interest coming and almost everybody would like to know when that interest is going to be paid. If the allies do not show more speed in paying back interest than they have in the past, there is a foregone conclusion that the bank who were willing to give their all and who sacrificed everything that was near and dear to them will become gray haired, old and decrepit, before relief would be afforded. The present administration, through President Harding, believes that a general sales tax would solve the situation, yet the democratic agitators, Pittman included, would rather remain a thorn in the side of the administration and deny that a sales tax is right and just to our soldier boys of the late world war.

"The question propounded is absurd," remarked Pittman. "Everybody knows now I stand on the bonus and that I want the interest on bonds used to pay the bonus." He said only $100,000,000 would be needed which would mean that the soldier would receive about $25 each. There is $100,000,000 delinquent in interest, but even this sum would not afford relief as it is estimated that four million will be required to meet the situation.

The hundreds will be kept busy for the next several days as copious tears flowed from the audience as the senator dwelt at length on the hardships that the soldiers endured during the late world war, yet he has steadfastly refrained from doing anything to help them in their behalf. Those who knew the senator and his position for grinding out "sob stuff," had come to the meeting with a pocketful of handkerchiefs, and as the senator waxed warm on his subject, he himself, was deeply moved and the audience sat in a fever of intense feeling.

Senator Tasker L. Oddie came in for lambasting by reason of having put up the fight to retain eyeglasses on the free list. It was none other than Senator Oddie who secured the support of Senator Capper of Kansas, chairman of the agricultural bloc, and who was successful in saving the eyeglass proposition, and Pittman even admitted it in his address yet he had the audacity to tell his audience that he forced the issue with Senator Lodge by threats of fighting measures in which the latter was interested. He told of Senator Oddie and others being driven from the committee room and how he went to their rescue. It was brazen-faced plain and simple and one would have imagined that this government would have gone to the bow wows had it not been for the senior senator from Nevada.

It took nearly an hour for Pittman to tell his audience how he worked out the salvation of silver, and half way insisted that the dollar price was not a war-time measure as was admitted through a letter written by President Wilson to the secretary of the treasury wherein the former insisted that the measure be enacted. As is the case in all

HENRY WEBER HERE AGAIN TO DEVELOP MINES

Was Prominent in Early Life of Tonopah and Goldfield and is Empire Builder

"I am back in Nevada to make the state over for meritorious mining propositions," remarked Henry Weber, pioneer mining man of both Tonopah and Goldfield, who left the latter place ten years ago for Colorado where he has been engaged in the development of the property of the Gladstone Mines Co., serving as president. The Gladstone is now recognized as one of the best silver-lead producers in the Centennial state.

Mr. Weber is accompanied by E. A. Markham, a geologist and mining engineer of national reputation, who thinks that the Tonopah district is one of the greatest mineral sections in the entire world. He is greatly impressed with the geological formation and believes that the life of Tonopah will extend over a long period of years.

"Yes, I am back in Nevada to do business," continued Mr. Weber. "I only recently returned from an extended eastern trip, and it is surprising the interest that is again manifesting itself in financial circles. While I do not look for a boom, the industry is showing a healthy growth, but I make the prediction that inside of the next two years here will be a genuine mining excitement and that Nevada will be the center of the greatest boom of activity ever known in the history of the industry. Nevada possesses untold mineral wealth, but there is an air of pessimism prevailing that should be discarded by those who live in such rich sections as Tonopah."

Tonopah will be the headquarters of both Mr. Markham and myself, and Mr. Markham will remain here indefinitely. I expect to be in and out frequently, but this will be my stopping place and where my business will be transacted."

During the Tonopah excitement Mr. Weber was here, but with the Goldfield excitement he moved over to that camp and became active in the industrial life of that community, soon becoming recognized as one of the most influential citizens of that camp. He was recognized as an empire builder, and that fact that he has decided to again establish headquarters in Tonopah and that he will become interested in mines augurs well for the district.

In his utterances, wherein he attempts to take full credit for the silver act, Pittman claimed that even though the measure was a war-time act, he forced the price from 80 cents to $1 an ounce, but those familiar with the whole matter know that it was through the committee of western mining men that the issue was forced to a happy conclusion, and that Pittman had no more to do with the matter than any other western senator and the mining men of the west who were called into conference with the secretary of the treasury.

In his opening remarks Pittman told his audience how greatly pleased he was to receive such a generous reception in his home town, but he failed to tell his audience where his home was. So far as known he has no home here—not even a chicken coop—and the only time he ever visits the district is when he is seeking the suffrage of the voters. He has some kind of a home in California, held in the name of some relative, and he has a home in Washington, but so far as Tonopah is concerned, there is no such "animal."

Ed Malley, candidate for state treasurer, addressed the meeting and threw a few bouquets at himself by saying he only paid out money as warrants were allowed. Chas. L. Deady, who has held office for 27 years, filling the position of surveyor general for the last 27 years, and who is known as the perpetual office holder, entertained the audience with a few funny stories, but he failed to explain where he had lost those 100,000 acres of land. To be sure he touched upon the matter, but in his clownish way endeavored to make light of the matter. Deady is the man who has been denying, with other democrats, the rights of new generations for a voice in the affairs of government, and he will no doubt continue to do so as long as breath is left in his body.

DEFEATGATCH, Thrace, Oct. 28.—Exhausted by their slow and weary flight toward Macedonia, vast armies of refugees who crowd the country roads now face starvation and disease. Thousands will perish in the next few weeks, it seems certain. In spite of all relief work rescuers can do, scarlet fever has broken out today, and cholera and typhoid threaten because of utter lack of sanitation. Babies are the worst sufferers and are most pathetic. There is no milk. Many infants have been brought into the world without medical attention in camps pitched along the roadside. The cold has caused many deaths.

MANILA, Oct. 28.—Governor General Wood in a message to the Philippine legislature yesterday, urged the strictest governmental economy and absolute retirement of government from business. He declared legitimate investments are safer in the Philippines than in many older countries.

In reaffirming his opinion that the government should retire from business, Governor General Wood's message said: "If experience in the world more clearly than another it was that the government cannot successfully conduct business. The experience of the insular government confirmed this. Its efforts to engage in business, although entered into with a view of benefitting the people and aiding in the development, resulted in the loss of many millions of pesos."
